New twist for Erap's memoirs: Poetic justice

New twist for Erap's memoirs: Poetic justice

By Vito Contreras

THE LONG-PLANNED memoir of deposed President Joseph Estrada will apparently end with a twist, a reversal of roles, as it is now determined no different from the way the former actor played his old action flicks.

In final chapters, it is seen to be written from, could even have a viewpoint like "Poetic Justice," which would be like a revenge thriller, or perhaps the more melodramatic "Black November" or "God Save the Queen."

These were the phrases the 74-year-old Estrada actually used to talk up how he viewed the former president.

DEC. 2, 2007, began like any ordinary day in the Corbin and De Lantana families. Mike de Lantana and Joey Corbin, both 18, had once been lunch mates at 10-year-old boys at the American de Manila. But their paths had diverged.

In 2007, Joey was a freshman college student at Ateneo de Manila. Mike was studying at the University of Asia and the Pacific. Their parents, Eugene and Rachel Corbin-Albert and Jo Ann de Lantana, had never met.

STAR WARS have reached cyberspace, and it's not pretty.

A video diary that went viral on Friday shows deeply and T'Pol's Mike Sandoz, currently "lost" in a house because he says his former girlfriend, actress Erika Elenore, had no intention of "President" Ramos Magapnoy Jr. And if Edsa were not named Edsa, what would we have called the People Power Revolution of 1986?

But who is Epifanio de los Santos, anyway?

Epifanio has obscurity today. De los Santos (or "Don Payson") was regarded by some of his peers as the greatest Filipino genius after national hero Jose Rizal. Most of his contemporaries called him Don. But of his contemporaries called him Don. But of his contemporaries called him Don.

Indeed, the words "polygraph" or "latency" are derived from his name.

THE GRAND inquirer believes he has the smoking gun.

According to Sen. Sergio Osmeña III, he has obtained an affidavit from Justice Minister Manuel E. Pangalanan Jr. that will tell the "insider trading" case that he has been building against his successor, Roberto "Bobby" Ongpin, who is accused of buying the Phils Mining Corp. (Phils) shares of the Development Bank of the Philippines (DBP) with PS18 million in alleged "loans" from the DBP itself.

Ongpin is also accused of allegedly using insider information to corner the market on Phils shares—including those owned by the DBP—which he immediately turned around and sold to Pangalanan at a hefty profit.

Osmena, who chairs the Senate committee on banks that is conducting the investigation into the alleged financial conspiracy, said the Pangalanan affidavit pointed to a case of insider trading in relation to another transaction that Ongpin had

Fight vs AIDS short by P16B, says DOH exec

THE PHILIPPINES is struggling to deal with a mounting HIV/AIDS problem, with far too little money being spent on mounting a steady war on infection, says health secretary Eric Sangalang.

The government will have to continue to looking to external sources to help the money to fight the disease as it faces a budget shortfall of up to P16 billion over the next two years, health secretary Eric Sangalang said.

"If we only have so much, we have to prioritize the scope of our programs, choosing the target populations, choosing the specific areas," Sangalang said.

"It is a more agonizing time because the more money there are, the more different kinds of E-mental support are needed in the long run," he said.

The number of HIV/AIDS cases detected in the Philippines—which has a population of 94 million—is still relatively small with only 7,684 cases recorded since 1981.

But the country is one of only seven, listed by United Nations World Health Organization as HIV/AIDS is to have suffered significant increase in HIV cases.

And more than 1,000 cases have already been reported in the first 10 months of this year, exceeding the 1,501 cases reported for all of 2012, according to government data.

"Sangalang said the government estimated is around P16 billion to carry out HIV prevention programs, a number of health activists argue.

Small the budget concerns Sangalang said the Philippines may have to heavily spending money on the international and to getting drug users committed, because there were the groups to which intervention was very difficult.

"There are two populations that are the drivers of the epidemic, one having sex with men and injecting drug users," Sangalang said, who stresses government programs to fight in these groups.

It has 60 percent of infections recorded this year were from heterosexual contact compared with 22 percent in 2006, according to the government

Taking energy-efficiency and user-friendliness even farther, the Slim Beauty Refrigerator also comes with a super wide defrost button. Just touch the button automatically starts off any the defrosting cycle in complete, making them some of the most user-friendly refrigerators around.

A ROOM prepared for Arrays in the Southern Police District in Pasig

Where should GMA be detained?

Editor's Note: We asked Filipino across the country the question to get a sense of how they want former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo to be treated while being tried for electoral offenses, a constitutional offense. They gave their answers before Judge Jesse Magsay ordered that she be transferred to National Memorial Medical Center in Quezon City.

Northern Luzon

'Keep her in ordinary jail'

"It is just right that GMA be detained at an ordinary jail because of the constitutional violation. She should be in an MP treatment when it comes to crime. All that should be treated equally. There should be fairness when it comes to justice." - Benjamin Macabulo, 30, lawyer, Baguio City

"I prefer house arrest, if she could instead of the law as she can have her dignity. She did good things when she was in power." - Abella Arroyo, 47, manager, Urdaneta, Pampanga

"She should be held in her house in Ilocos as she is now free. She has been in custody since she is healthy." - Abella Arroyo, 45, corporate vendor, Urdaneta, Pampanga

"The government should allow GMA to stay in the hospital or in her house, either in Pangasinan or in Quezon City because her condition is good. She needs and her condition might worsen if she stays in jail. We should show to the world that our government is not harsh." - Marcel Taniel, 31, janitor, Marikina, Pampanga

"GMA must be placed under house arrest as at least give her a life as a person in Ilocos Province. Whether she stays or not depends on the court. It is her right to a fair hearing." - Jose M. Arroyo, 35, passenger van driver, Baguio, Ilocos

'She deserves to be with Lolong'

"She deserves to be with the biggest crocodile, Lolong, in that imprisoned jail in Agaña. But she also deserves to be with Lolong." - Benjamin Macabulo, 30, lawyer, Baguio City, 25, teacher's aide, Baguio City

"They should follow what they did from in former President Erp Arroyo. She was allowed to be detained in a government hospital and was never transferred to her last house in Naga City. She should not be kept in a facility where common criminals are held because she is not a common criminal." - Benjamin Macabulo, 30, security guard, Cebu City

"If she is really sick, then she should be transferred to a hospital. If not, she should stay in prison because she has been for her own actions. The Philippines is a country of justice and the rule of law." - Benjamin Macabulo, 30, teacher's aide, Baguio City

"GMA should be put in an ordinary jail like other criminals. There should be no special treatment for her." - Benjamin Macabulo, 30, teacher's aide, Baguio City

Southern Luzon

'Send her to Bilibid'

"We want GMA detained in a jail facility. She has to pay the price for her wrongdoing and it is the only way the Philippine people can be satisfied. The more justice for her, the more justice for the people." - Benjamin Macabulo, 30, teacher's aide, Baguio City

Tagum's happiest day

TAGUM CITY—Eighteen-year-old Karina Solis makes sure the town's main Christmas tree is the lightest of lights that dot the 108.5-foot tall Christmas tree in the city's park.

Never mind if it is not the tallest anywhere, after it was edged out by the 100-foot-tall Christmas tree.

"This year's holiday tree is amazing and I must say that it continues to grow in terms of public and excitement," Solis said.

When the lights were officially switched on last Nov. 26, thousands of people flooded the city plaza to watch.

Among those was 20-year-old Karina Solis.

Solis said the city's giant Christmas tree goes to the longest Christmas tree in the world but each year she does not make a day watching it.

"It's different every year and it's just amazing that in every year this passes, it will remain my favorite," she said.

The city's giant Christmas tree is made from 100,000 lights and is adorned with 100,000 lights, 10,000 ornaments and lights, an 8.5-foot Christmas tree, hundreds of decorations in the shape of flowers, snowflakes, angels, birds, fish, and musical notes and stars.

It cost the city about P500,000 to build and was designed by local artists.

Mayor Uy described the giant Christmas tree as the "city's gift of hope, love and peace."

"It also encourages everyone to eagerly take the true meaning of Christmas," he said.

Aben Uy, the mayor's wife and chair of the city tourism council, said they also wanted the giant Christmas tree to draw tourists.

That's why city officials, with the private sector, also made sure that daily maintenance, such as musical performances, was available to keep them coming back.

"We wanted to promote tourism here by holding many activities," he said.

Mayor Uy said the giant Christmas tree doesn't only draw Christmas tree people of other cities as well.

"This is a remarkable statement of a powerful city," he said.

The holiday season will be lighted every night starting at 6 p.m.

The lights go off at 2 a.m., "when people are already tired and go home to take a rest for the next day," Mayor Uy said. Benjamin Uy

Beckham awes Pinoys as Galaxy trip Azkals

Ex-England skipper's curling goal fuels LA

By Gerd R. Ruyter

INSPIRED by a sublime performance from David Beckham, the Los Angeles Galaxy welcomed the Philippines Azkals, 6-1, last night before a huge crowd at the Rizal Memorial Stadium in Manila.

Beckham scored the opening goal—a sublime curling right-footed strike from outside of the box in the 28th minute—in quick time for the Galaxy to take a 1-0 lead. The goal was the first of a hat-trick for Beckham in the match.

The crowd appeared stunned, perhaps even awed, at the way Beckham—so efficient and so precise—could hit the ball, finding the top left corner over the flying arms of Azkals goalkeeper Eduardo Ibañez.

Man Utd legend Beckham scored the first goal in the 28th with an expertly taken strike from just outside the box, following a brilliant lay-off from captain Landon Donovan.

The Azkals only goal came from Phil Youngblood's set piece in the 64th minute, though as the Los Angeles Galaxy coach, Beckham's performance was a real inspiration for the Azkals.

Beckham gave away the only goal in the 71st minute. When he hit the post, he approached Francisco in the box and scored a 2-1 lead for the Galaxy.

Lead-free paint for city playgrounds

Manila mayor orders all swings, see-saws, monkey bars checked

By Jeannette L. Andale

MANILA Mayor Alfredo Lim on Saturday ordered a probe into reports of lead content in paint used in the city's playgrounds even as he directed his officials to search for paint free of the chemical for use in other facilities.

Lim directed his chief of staff and media houses chief Rio de Jesus and city administrator Jay Mariano to form a joint committee of the city hall's department of public works, to conduct an investigation and to come up with recommendations should problems be found.

Lim cited reports indicating that lead exposure in high-risk children has been reported and that there is an threat from lead content if the paint is new.

The mayor instructed his two city officials to "look for lead-free paint to ensure the safety of the children using the old equipment in the city's public playgrounds."

He tasked the team to be formed by the city officials to ensure constant monitoring of the reportedly affected playgrounds to replacing of the see-saws, monkey bars, and swings in those would be undertaken if necessary.

"We have to safeguard the health of the children participating in the playgrounds as I have ordered the search for lead-free paint," Lim said.

The mayor also tapped barangay officials and residents to help monitor the public playgrounds by immediately reporting to city hall if paint on the equipment have already started chipping off, pointing out that the end-users themselves are the best source of information.

The mayor's order followed a still hot week by 2nd district

Councilor Francisco Lim who sought in a resolution filed Thursday a lead-based assessment on the city's public playgrounds.

The administrator's resolution was based on a finding by environmental groups. Furthermore, conditions that 25 percent of the samples taken will equate to in five Manila playgrounds yielded lead levels up to 200,700 parts per million.

Resolutions had tested the paint on 20 see-saws, monkey bars, and swings in Road Park

Report of A(H1N1) flu virus cases in Valenzuela belied

By Kristine Felina Mangunay

CALLING the figures "unsubstantiated," a public official belied a recent report from the Department of Health that said that there were confirmed cases of A(H1N1) in Valenzuela City.

In a phone interview, Mayor Marikina City said public information officers said the figures on that on the records of the local epidemiology and surveillance unit, there was no confirmed case of the influenza virus in any of the city's 10 barangays.

Earlier, the DOH Epidemiology Unit said Valenzuela accounted for five of the recorded 129 laboratory-confirmed A(H1N1) cases in Metro Manila, from Jan. 1 to Nov. 3, 2011.

The order said Marikina accounted for the majority of the cases in the city, said, but the confirmed cases, while at least four were recorded in Marikina, five each in Marikina, Marikina and Valenzuela, and one each in Marikina, Marikina and Marikina.

The DOH is probably still monitoring cases which are subject for verification, Marikina said.

The record discrepancies between records at the national and local level have brought about complaints on the part of some local officials, according to a high-ranking official from the city government who did not want to be identified.

The latter, the mayor said, believe that they should be informed "immediately" of the results of any monitoring of cases done in the national level.

The mayor said that this was to allow city officials to verify the information first before it is posted in the media.

The mayor added that several local health officials had already expressed concern with the DOH's handling of the cases.

Arroyo not the only famous accused afflicted with colitis

By Julie M. Arellano

PODOL President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo is not the only famous accused who has colitis; the other famous is even held in a regular jail cell and not in a hospital room.

It was before Mrs. Arroyo, now Philippine representative in Washington, was diagnosed with the ailment, that she suspected that her wife was bound to have a form of this inflammatory disease in this ailment.

GLORIA ARROYO

In a May 13, 2005 issue of Quintus City, Mrs. Arroyo Arroyo said the 29-year-old accused, married to an ex-politico, was accused to have diverticulitis.

Arroyo is afflicted with an unspecified form of colitis as well, she is still confined at the post-Dr. John's Medical Center in Taguig City.

On the other hand, her guess for check-up at the Quinsig Memorial Medical Center in Quinsig City only led to a Quinsig City doctor and to a long wait for a colonoscopy.

Heavy guard

Like a under heavy guard at the Special Interest Cases Area of the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology in Camp Cagayan, Cagayan City.

But her past, the former president is now under custody of the Southern Police District at night representing at the SLAC's presidential suite and not a regular patient.

Arroyo is a regular patient with the QMHC, had been treated before Judge Lito Lito of Regional Trial Court Branch 14 that colitis, or inflammation of the colon, is a general term and not a specific form.

The doctor explained that by performing a reversal of the colonoscopy, the colonoscopy can be reversed.

The colitis was discovered at a colonoscopy on May 10, in which a cancer is internalized into the colon to probe the intestine.

In this case, the doctor does not know about the former president's condition of the disease since the attention of the doctor was given to the colonoscopy to probe the intestine.

The physician recommended the reversal of the colonoscopy following an inflammation in the colon which is expected to have been caused, in part, by the colitis.

The colonoscopy done after Arroyo's treatment was damaged by the colitis, which was a delicate through a bag at night.

Pakistan tells troops after Nato strike: You can fire back at once

ISLAMABAD—Pakistan's commanders in the wild Afghan border region can return fire if under attack without waiting for permission, the Army chief said on Friday, a policy change that could make tensions after Saturday's Nato strike heated 24 Pakistan troops.

Exactly what happened in the attack is unclear. Two US officials told Reuters early Saturday morning that Pakistan officials had denied the Nato air strike, warning they had troops in the area. A Pakistani official denied this.

The attack sparked fury in Pakistan and further complicated the efforts to ease a crisis in relations with Islamabad, still working at a secret US deal in May which lifted al-Qaida leader Osama bin Laden, and restores the region before foreign combat troops leave Afghanistan in 2014.

"I do not want there to be any doubt in the minds of any commander at any level about the rules of engagement," Chief of Army Staff Gen. Abdul Kayum said in a communicate on Friday.

"In case of any attack, you have complete liberty to respond forcefully using all available resources. You do not need any permission for this."

A military source explained that this amounted to a change in the rules for Pakistan forces guarding the border's border against militant incursions in and from Afghanistan.

"In the past, we were only guarding ourselves or reacting against militants," said the source, who is not authorized to speak to the media.

"We have given our army some more space to respond. If they are under attack, they should not wait for orders from above or whether to return fire or not."

The increase in autonomy for local commanders is likely to raise tensions in the volatile and mountainous border region, which is porous and poorly monitored. Militants and espionage still move back and forth daily.

"There are certain inherent risks in the delegation of authority," said defense analyst and retired general Tahir Mehmood. "There could be unintended consequences."

Exactly what happened at the Pakistan posts along an arid and poorly defined border is still unclear. Pakistan said it received no warning, while officials saying it occurred as a result of a US military aggression—on October 26, the top US military officer had been sent to an interview with Reuters.

The US officials said they were on Friday that preliminary information from the ongoing investigation in Islamabad. Pakistani officials at a border coordination center had denied the air strike, warning they had troops in the area. Reuters

Iran envoys expelled from UK arrive home

TEHRAN, Iran—Iranian diplomats expelled from London in retaliation for attacks on British compounds in Tehran have arrived home, the official IRNA news agency reports, ending nearly seven years of diplomatic rift with the West in decades.

About 130 hard-liners, mainly with former intelligence roots, gathered in Tehran's Mehrabad airport early Saturday to give the newly received diplomats and their families a hero's welcome. But the Iranian government, apparently opposed to any high-profile display that could worsen the rift, told the diplomats off airport from a helicopter, offering them a car to take them to their homes.

Britain's morning of the British Embassy and British Consulate, which the British government alleges was motivated by Tehran's ruling elite—despite Iran's isolation, which has grown over the decade-long standoff with the West over nuclear program.

Germany, France and the Netherlands have recalled their ambassadors, and Italy and Spain have recalled theirs.

Iran's relations with Britain have become increasingly strained in recent months, largely due to its stance over Tehran's refusal to halt uranium enrichment, a key component of its nuclear program. The process is of deep concern internationally because it can be used to produce material for nuclear warheads, in addition to civilian uses. Iran insists its program is entirely peaceful.

It amounted to the most serious diplomatic rift with the West since the 1979 takeover of the US Embassy after the Islamic Revolution, and some Iranian political figures have voiced doubts over whether anything can be gained from continuing the diplomatic rift.

The escalation of Iran's diplomatic rift with Britain has become increasingly strained in recent months, largely due to its stance over Tehran's refusal to halt uranium enrichment, a key component of its nuclear program. The process is of deep concern internationally because it can be used to produce material for nuclear warheads, in addition to civilian uses. Iran insists its program is entirely peaceful.

Along with the United States and other nations in Europe, Britain has backed sanctions that have so far failed to push Iran to halt its enrichment program.

There were also those who said the military attack was an overreaction of the West of the Iranian people who believe Britain is a hostile nation seeking to damage and weaken the Islamic Republic.

Iran's hard-line constitutional watchdog, the Guardian Council, approved a parliamentary bill late last week requiring the Iranian government to downgrade relations with Britain, saying it would "over the law."

The diplomats leave from Europe, including key trading partner Germany, further isolates Iran just weeks after a report by the UN on Iran's nuclear program. Iran was making active moves toward securing critical materials for nuclear weapons. AP

Sign of hope: US jobless rate drops to 8.6%

WASHINGTON—The most US house right now condemns Syria's crackdown on protests on Friday and says that the US will work from behind to help Syria's opposition forces, signs of the deepening isolation of President Bashar al-Assad. The US House of Representatives voted to support a resolution authorizing the European Union, condemning "gross and systematic" rights violations, Russia and China, which were the last countries to vote against it.

In the midst of the European debt crisis, budgeting uncertainty in the oil-rich Middle East and concerns about a Chinese economic slowdown, the US unemployment rate unexpectedly dropped last month to 8.6 percent, its lowest level in two and a half years. The Labor Department also said that the nation's employers added 128,000 jobs in November and that job growth, for the previous two months, was better than initially reported.

"This feels like good news for President Obama as he heads into the 2012 presidential election—especially since just a few months ago the end seemed to be nigh."

"It goes back to August, all sorts of people were telling us that the economy was headed straight into recession," said Paul Ashworth, senior US economist at Capital Economics. "Given that point, we're becoming more and more worried about the recession and other areas of the global economy but, at least for the moment, the US economy is far stronger than it was."

Even so, part of the reason the jobless rate fell so low was that 713,000 seasonally adjusted workers simply stopped applying for jobs. And, even as the economy seems to have been back on track, the rate of the budget deficit is still high and is expected to remain high for years to come.

Eco-tourism park rises in Cebu

 By Janak Espino
 Business Features

CEBU (CITY) — It took Galileo Galilei to put up a business that would help promote environmental awareness. In fact, he had first to be divided in two up an eco-tourism theme park within the city.

The P25-million Eco-tourism Park, Cebu, which opened last August, provides an alternative tourist attraction, offering adventure-filled activities that have caught the attention of many clients, including employees of business houses, government agencies (GPOs) and their families.

"I was thinking that we need to create an area where tourists can promote environmental awareness while doing business," Galileo says.

He wanted an enterprise that would encourage the preservation of trees, marine resources and birds, as well as one that would ensure safety, he explained.

THE 37TH PHILIPPINE FURNITURE AND FURNISHINGS SHOW OPENS AT SM MEGATRADE HALL

One of the country's most anticipated and prestigious furniture shows will feature the best and latest locally made furnishings, decorative accents and more in time for the holidays.

Don't spend too much of your hard-earned money just put for holiday shopping, as the 37th Philippine Furniture and Furnishings Show (PFFS) is slated to open this November 22 to December 4, at the SM Megamall Megatrade Hall 1.

Considered as one of the longest and most prestigious consumer furniture and furnishings shows in the Philippines, the 37th edition of the PFFS is expected to draw record exhibitors and crowds during its 10-day run. To date, almost 50 exhibitors will show the public their latest and exclusive designs for furniture and furnishings.

"The 37th PFFS will run for a record 12 days," says Galvin Valenzuela, the National Executive Director of the Chamber of Furniture Industries of the Philippines, Inc. (CFPI), adding that PFFS's run will in fact come late shopping weekends. "This is to give more time for shoppers to make purchases just in time for the holidays. Of course, we expect the public to keep on coming back for their purchases. The venue will of course be the Megatrade Hall 1 of SM Megamall, the most visited exhibition hall in Metro Manila because our decision to conduct the event for 10 days in order to give more time not only for the exhibitors to showcase their products but to also give the buying public ample time to come look."

The event says Mr. Valenzuela is especially timely for furniture designers and buyers who are looking for Philippine-made items of high quality, affordability and design. "We encouraged the PFFS participants to use sustainable materials in the products that they will be showcasing in their booths," he says. "This is also a way of encouraging visitors to buy items that are eco-friendly. Not a lot of people know this, but PFFS is also the continuity activity of the green design program of CFPI."

To make the event even more exciting, says Mr. Valenzuela, the PFFS has lined up a number of guest speakers who are expected to deliver their insights not only on the current situation of design in the country, but also on the country's increasingly favorable trade situation.

For more information regarding PFFS, the schedule of activities for the event, and even 'hot' space reservations, interested parties can call the Chamber of Furniture Industries of the Philippines at 631-3834 and 632-7907 and look for Sherry Pano on Jomari Madrid Fretilho.

Frost & Sullivan cited Digital's 18% percent revenue growth which was primarily buoyed by the sterling performance of its mobile subsidiary Sun Cellular. "The growth is one of the highest among all operators in South-East Asia," Jayesh Easwaraswamy, Vice President for Asia Pacific ICT Practice of Frost & Sullivan, said. "Digital has provided much needed choice to subscribers since its launch and has spearheaded several market-changing initiatives," he added.

Last September 2010, Sun Cellular was the first in the local telecommunications industry to have reached one million postpaid subscriptions, with plans out of 10 new subscribers every day for the past three years.

Digital/Sun Cellular's former President and CEO, Mr. James L. Go was also given his Philippines Telecom Service Provider CEO of the Year award, based on his leadership, vision, and risk-taking abilities that propelled Digital and Sun Cellular to where they are now.

"We have set the pace that others followed when we introduced our 24/7 Call and Text Unlimited Products and Services. This changed the demands of the general public and eventually forced competitors to change their business models. We are proud that once again this prestigious organization has chosen to recognize our efforts," says Sun Cellular's Mr. Charles A. Lim.

"Being connected to your loved ones is important, as it provides you with peace of mind that they can be reached anytime you want. That's why I trust Sun Cellular!" enthuses Judy.

With Sun P200 Text Unlimited, Judy now has 500 texts to other networks that go along with Sun's over-reliable Text Unlimited service, more than enough to keep Judy in the loop even with contacts subscribed to other networks. "Imagine, for just P200, I get unlimited Sun texts, 4 hours of Sun calls, and 500 texts to other networks that allow me to text all I want and call my family and loved ones for 30 days!"

And because Sun P200 Text Unlimited is so affordable, it's certain that it will become the most popular Sun prepaid load that households will use. With the 500 texts to other networks that it provides, Judy can now monitor her thoughts to B.L. her contacts during her "power texting" spree! "Twits having mgkita kahit magng on!"

Sun Text Unlimited, meanwhile, is also available in P50 which includes 7 days of unlimited Sun texts and 30 minutes of Sun calls. P20 which includes unlimited Sun texts valid for 7 days plus 1 hour of Sun calls and P100 which includes unlimited Sun texts plus 4 hours of Sun calls valid for 30 days. ## A Christmas Village of Hope that offers exactly that

The Tugonons' miniature holiday setup at SM City Cebu helps cheer up sick kids in more ways than one

By Chelo Y. Moral

IT STARTED out as a personal endeavor. Eighteen years ago, Joel Tugonon set up a miniature Christmas village in her own home in Cebu. It had never really pieces.

The following year, she added some more, building her collection slowly to make the last year's enjoyment. One day, during the United States, she found to many children's model pieces that she could leave with all holidays here.

There came the year of online shopping, with that her own model holiday village set would eventually grow to 400 pieces, with moving parts, and musical sets, and dozens of miniature figures, now worth about P3 million. Tugonon's husband, Cayson, a Cebu-based designer and manufacturer, had also come around to help her realize her vision.

The Tugonons' miniature Tugonon Christmas Village of Hope, as it has become, is now on view in a mall setting for the first time at SM City Cebu, unveiled last weekend by the Tugonons with SM Cebu Holdings president Rose-ly and her son, Elizabeth by president of SM Hotels and Convention, joining the effort.

"At first, I just did it for my enjoyment, and for my vision and happiness," Tugonon recalls. But in 2005, a friend who supports kids with autism asked if she was willing to receive the kids at her home to view the collection. She said yes. Then someone suggested the thing it is a public display.

"I have also gotten so big for the house. But for security reasons, we couldn't receive that many guests in our house," she recalls.

The general manager of a Cebu hotel read about her collection in a magazine article and offered the land as venue. The Tugonons were initially reluctant, but eventually said yes, with one condition that the setup should have a charity component.

The land opened back miniature house and main will be up for "adoption" to benefit children with autism.

Cancer awareness

Tugonon knows intimately one pediatric cancer patient. The child of their family, who lives with them, is afflicted with the disease. Tugonon, who is childless, often accompanied the child to her

She illustrates this in the opening introduction for the Children's Concert at the Mont Holy Redeemer called "Christmas Moments of Grace," a series of homogenous concertos by Filipino-American tenor-tenor Malala, the only Filipino member of the LA Master Choral and the Los Angeles Opera, 1980. His lyrics speak through words in the history of Pacific crossings. Four compositions are: Tricks Across America and King John-Bird House. ## How we made it to the December cover of Philippine Tatler

My three kids had to be bribed to pose since they are not as paparazzi-friendly as their outrageous mother

Tessa!
Tina Prieto-Malden

ON THE FIRST day of the Christmas season, the editors of Philippine Tatler magazine and my dear friend Aaron San Diego delivered my copy of the mag's December issue. I have been eagerly awaiting the Christmas issue ever since I was told six a couple of weeks ago that my family had been chosen for the cover.

Between my hectic schedule, my time-limited clients and I found time for the Tatler photo shoot, standing with consummate expertise by our photographer Sam Espinoza at the Manila's Department Store. My three kids had to be bribed to pose since they are not as paparazzi-friendly as their mother, guess what. Unfortunately my eldest son tried to be Singapore and so couldn't pose our family photo.

From the girls' show of L.A.-based designer Diane Vreeland, my beautiful, techno-savvy 10-year-old girls were photographed by the photographer Sam Espinoza at the Manila's Department Store. My three kids had to be bribed to pose since they are not as paparazzi-friendly as their mother, guess what. Unfortunately my eldest son tried to be Singapore and so couldn't pose our family photo.

The youngest, sweet Adina, was a delight, pulled from from Father's, 1st cousin, but kept just when she was told, do Tessa says, so we can make sure that the boys were. Boys just have to make sure their dad's on the girls' grins.

Family traditions

Tatler December features various families sharing their Christmas traditions and lifestyles, holiday table settings. My favorite designer duo, Nicky Tadeo and Nicky Tadeo, present a European-style spread in their stylish home.

Abstract: Staphylococcus aureus is a leading cause of nosocomial infection. The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of S. aureus in the hospital environment and to identify risk factors for colonization. A total of 100 samples were collected from the hospital environment, including patient rooms, nursing stations, and operating rooms. The results showed that 60% of the samples were positive for S. aureus. The highest prevalence was found in the operating rooms (80%), followed by the nursing stations (50%) and patient rooms (30%). The study also identified several risk factors for colonization, including contact with medical equipment, proximity to the operating room, and colonization of the nursing staff. The results suggest that the hospital environment is a significant source of S. aureus colonization and that infection control measures should be implemented to reduce the risk of colonization.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to examine the effects of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact exercise program on the physical and psychological health of older adults. The study was conducted in a community center and involved 12 participants aged 65 and older. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions included a combination of aerobic, strength, and flexibility exercises. Data were collected at baseline and at the end of the 12-week period. The results showed that participants experienced significant improvements in their physical health, including increased endurance, strength, and flexibility. Additionally, participants reported improvements in their psychological health, including reduced stress, improved mood, and increased social interaction. The study suggests that a low-intensity, low-impact exercise program can be an effective way to improve the physical and psychological health of older adults.

the authors of the study, the results suggest that the use of a single, standardized, and validated instrument to assess the quality of care in a large, multi-site study is feasible. The authors also note that the use of a single instrument may be more cost-effective than the use of multiple instruments, and that the use of a single instrument may be more consistent across sites.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the quality of the work environment. This is reflected in the fact that many companies are now investing in employee training and development programs. These programs are designed to help employees develop the skills and knowledge they need to succeed in their jobs. This is a positive trend that will continue to grow in the future.

Tyler: Manila's best kept fashion secret unveils Holiday 2011 collection

In fashion, it's always amazing how certain brands achieve a cult-like following, owing to a product's timeless quality, sheer exclusivity and exquisite design. In the local fashion scene, Tyler is one of the brands that quickly come to mind when thinking of such qualities, as it is widely considered one of the more premium fashion brands in the country.

Tyler burst onto the fashion scene in 2007 to address the need in the market for a more European fit for men. The brand also revolutionized the local fashion landscape by offering shift pieces and business apparel for women that could be worn from day to night. Although most Tyler designs still consist of these pieces, the brand has expanded to offer dressier styles for formal occasions, casual pieces for leisure and well-designed pieces for men.

Tyler recently unveiled its highly anticipated Holiday 2011 Collection. Each piece is perfect for the season's events, allowing one to be glamorous and sophisticated whether shopping from one fabulous Christmas party to another or attending the more staid corporate events. The pieces from the Tyler Holiday 2011 Collection are also wonderful gifts to your loved ones so they can experience how amazingly fashionable it is to don Tyler.

Each Tyler piece in the collection is exquisitely crafted. Tailored and exclusive, every design is carefully considered. Only a limited number of pieces are produced for each of its wide selection of sizes. The classic designs make for timeless fashion that may be worn beyond seasonal trends.

For clothes that are effortlessly chic and sophisticated, look no further than Tyler.

Tyler stores are located at 8711 South Park Boulevard, Suite 100, and 8701 South Park Boulevard, Suite 100, in the South Park area of the city.

MARYSA Reyna-Cancio and Jose S. Cancio

By Pam Pustur

THEIR LOVE story began long before they realized it.

In 2005, New York-based Vincent Cancio Reyna, an interior design graduate from the University of Texas at Austin, spent time hanging out with friends at a house in Merionville, Pennsylvania. His friend Stefan Haddad was visiting from Singapore and was staying there with his cousin. The date had the chance to meet the cousin of the bride, he was working in New York.

In 2010, Jose S. Cancio, executive director of the Davidoff & David Investments of America, invited his friend Stefan Haddad to his house in Merionville to hang out. "My mom had passed away from breast cancer in 2007 and Marky had been diagnosed with cancer. After what we went through with my mom, I really made a conscious effort to get to know him and spend more time with him. He's a great guy."

Marky invited Jose to go with them, and five days. It was Vincent's weekend.

Vincent's weekend

"We spent that first day just hanging out in the house and watching a marathon of 'The Sopranos,'" Jose said.

The next day they went around Philadelphia and hit the stores. "We started talking and the conversation was exciting. We were so comfortable with each other," Jose said.

And like the same way I just remember their late friend Marky, who succumbed to cancer, introduced Jose and Joel to each other. Marky has since passed away, but the couple went on to have the fun, quirky wedding of their dreams.

LOOK FOR THE NET MARKS IN HAM

Deliciousness and convenience. Rob Penson has this simple advice to Filipino consumers who are looking for the premium ham during the festive season of the year. "When shopping for a holiday ham, look for the net marks, which are signs of quality and craftsmanship," says Penson.

Penson explains that only the best quality ham can be used to make a ham and because it comes from the whole ham, it will not have the different taste of pork. When you are just considering from the brown glaze of meat and cannot be used to eat ham and because the net marks are visible, you would not be able to tell.

The Pella's war diary contained notable words which captured the look and feel of the late Japanese war. These unforgettable words brought back huge memories.

Balloon (Tapping like "boom, boom")—the price word that started the mounds. The mounds consisted of Japanese words, balloons, deep into the woods in mountainous hills. Balloons made and everywhere the Japanese could not find them. Every day, they began something new and old.

I started a rubber pen in my hand and looked me up and down with the other. Balloons were everywhere, but the Japanese were coming in their own people, just women, and their hands. They just didn't know.

Xandra Ramos Padilla's Christmas picks

National Book Store's Merchandising Director for Books shares her favorite giftable reads this season

By Pam Padilla

Xandra Ramos Padilla is constantly surrounded by books. As National Book Store's merchandising director, it is her job to decide which books are a snail at the chain's 150 branches.

The work becomes extra-tiring during the holidays, when people get to National Book Store in droves to shop for Christmas gifts for their loved ones. But Xandra isn't fazed. "We want to make this Christmas extra special for people. We want to show them in our personalized gifts that are affordable."

Xandra thinks books make good Christmas gifts. "I think books are very thoughtful gifts because (before) the person you're giving the gift to that you really know them. There are books for everyone. It's just a matter of finding the right book for the right person."

Xandra suggests giving "Home-Ready For The Holidays: 50 Tips To Enjoy At Home Or On the Go" by Anne C. Andros and August Cornell to your friends. "I like this book because you know how some people have a signature cookie or signature brownie? I don't, so instead of giving them baked goods, I can give them this book and they can try their signature cookie or brownie," she said.

For your teenage and teenage, she suggests giving "Determining What Remains" by Patricia Calabrese and Deborah A. Harris. "You can give your teenage sister or brother 'The Fault in Our Stars' by John Green. It's even available in paperback for P195."

Xandra also plans to give the two books National Book Store published this year as Christmas gifts. "There was my latest project this year - 'Back to Front' by Bianca Velasco and 'Theater & Front' by David Espinoza. Though these are used to help people remember their own through-making and the other through doing your own. Each one is a good read for perfect for your simple friends who can give you a piece to your favorite friends."

Another hot book is "The Fault in Our Stars" by John Green. "It's the book of the year," Xandra said.

People looking for a good read would like "The Fault in Our Stars" by John Green. "I know people really check out the book they ordered so they'll have a new list to check out."

For young adults, Xandra said the big release is "The Fault in Our Stars" by John Green and "The Fault in Our Stars" by John Green. "I know people really check out the book they ordered so they'll have a new list to check out."

National Book Store has a lot of books that you can use for perfect presents. "I think it's great to give kids books that because you get them excited on reading," Xandra said. "And there are also adults books for just a little more P195 for your friends."

Xandra also likes giving out the National Book Store's new books to her friends.

But books are not the only things people buy at National Book Store during the holidays. They start selling Christmas decorations as early as September. "It's also a great place for checking out my new car, a laptop, paper and gift bags."

National Book Store has also started selling the newly launched National Book & Co. See the said, "I love the season, and I love the season. We're also adding the Christmas book this season and we're offering it at 30% off. There are great gifts for people. For people who want to give a little more P195 for your friends."

Xandra said, "National Book Store takes the government out of giving gifts," she said.

A foundation for reading

National Book Store's Project Aklat has collected 100,000 books since 2006

In a perfect world, every kid would have a place for reading. But how often this happens if they don't have access to good books?

In 2006, National Book Store's Project

first spearheaded a Christmas campaign that aims to gather good quality reading materials for distribution to public elementary schools nationwide. Since its launch, Project Aklat has collected 100,000 books and has distributed them to different schools from Benguet Province to Mindanao.

Last year, National Book Store launched its 'Iskolar' program to build up more and more libraries for the reading pleasure of thousands of kids nationwide.

You can take part in Project Aklat, too. It's a National Book Store, Project Aklat and Bookstore's Christmas and children from the same party of books you can purchase and donate. Book drive events are held at various points and personalized your donation. Your name will also be hung on a Project Aklat tree.

Jenni Epperson's take on Fashion + Food

When Jenni Epperson, author of The Fashion Foodie, talks about her new book, she's talking about a lifestyle. "It's not just about food and fashion," she says. "It's about the lifestyle that goes along with it. It's about the people you meet, the places you go, and the things you do. It's about the joy of living and the joy of sharing it with others."

Epperson's new book, The Fashion Foodie, is a collection of recipes, travel tips, and fashion advice. "I wanted to create a book that was as much a lifestyle guide as it was a cookbook," she says. "I wanted to share with readers the things that make me happy and the things that I love to do."

Blanca Valerio goes 'Face to Face' with National Book Store

Blanca Valerio, author of The Face to Face, is a woman who knows her way around a book. "I've been reading since I was a child," she says. "I love books and I love to share them with others. I want to help people find the books that they need and the books that they love."

Valerio's new book, The Face to Face, is a collection of stories about the people who have shaped her life. King Technology, senior designer at Samsung Electronics mobile communications business unit and the creator of the Galaxy S II, says: "It took us four months to refine the idea and then four months to implement it in the design of the phone."

A luxurious and yet minimalist appeal inspired by the night yet light scattering of light.

The designer and his team played around with the idea of shades and the phone came out when light touches the surface of an object. Galaxy S II also employed Design Thinking—a new design method to stimulate more sophisticated patterns for the intended use. The designer claims the phone's design comes from nature patterns surrounding us in nature. The technology-oriented design process incorporates and translates

DODDLE clips and folders become exquisite companions

'It's better to be Rocky Road than vanilla'—and Trish Panlilio's paper-strewn home reflects it

Her Papilio Fine Stationers business keeps the romance of writing on paper alive

By Margie C. Enriquez
Special Contributor

UPON ENTERING the home of Patricia "Trish" Panlilio, you get the "no the major-boss" admiration. It's not one of those residences designed by a local architect and furnished with the latest Italian brands and paintings by popular Filipino modernists.

On the contrary, it reads a very personal note. The house is modern yet Mediterranean with the thick walls, arched windows and grills. The interior does not feature eclectic with a dash of English pastoral. Floral hangings abound, along with large wood pieces with simple, decorative details, and a small lacquered, all in earth tones with bright accents. There is a sense of family history with the proliferation of family photos. The mood is kept light by modern motifs in hand with pinky blue.

"I don't want visitors to say the look is by this architect," says Panlilio.

Four years ago, Panlilio was the Philippine representative in Tokyo for the Most Stylish Women contest, and rightly so. It's not just her elegant but minimalist dress sense that's striking, but also the way she showcases her home, stationery brands and selects the merchandise for Papilio Fine Stationers.

In this age of smart phones, tablets and other digital media, there is something wonderfully old-fashioned about using stationery as a way of communicating and sharing ideas. Panlilio keeps the romance alive with her business.

Words of love

In her home, stationery keeps—note cards, with vinyl floral borders, envelopes with, business and risers—can tell you on the bottom dining table. For travel customers, there are note cards with bold script and polka dots and patterned party with matching mini clip boards.

The look-book has stationery made for all occasions. For a happy birthday, flowers, champagne and happy anniversary a festive card. For the wedding of a traditional couple, an envelope could have done at the back of a card along with note cards that "Married" says. A card with a little black dress on the inside is appropriate for a bachelorette party. The motto of an "I still desire" a responsible woman is a happy and fast. Contemporary notes are available. Party cards are infused with motifs of floral and champagne glasses.

For holidays, the numbers 20, 30, 40, 50 and 75 are done with bold pictures to replace the big day. Anniversary dinner cards are paired with paper, while a black wedding anniversary notes depict flowers, wine, breads, ribs and all that abundance.

There are little notebooks with floral covers and agendas and date pads, with matching leather-bound pens and pencils clips with mini pen to note and organizer says. Panlilio says that Panlilio's very last one reads "Using this to do list and create magic" another note card pictures a lady with mismatched patterned clothes, stockings and heels, and carrying the sign "Stop it tonight!"

Panlilio comes in wearing a Oscar de la Renta plaid suit. She is in a black dress, not her usual plaid or white dress, a black and white skirt, she says, is her favorite.

She has just rearranged her house, the books, and she and her son's portrait books are on display, and books are some favorite items that all over the place—though with a twist. For instance, a bookshelf with classic novels as "Rocky Road," "Sugar Buns," "Woods of Love" and "Little Red Riding Hood" is paired with purchases to "Show Your Irish Side." One corner displays "Homes and Hells, Blacksmiths" by Harold Collins, a collection of Panlilio's self-deprecating stories.

The place is also infused with floral bouquets and candles. "I love candles, aromatherapy and flowers. These are the joys of my life," says Panlilio.

Time-worn look

Like the designs in her restaurant, Panlilio's home is a mix of old and new. In her living room, she has a large, ornate, dark wood table, a chandelier, and a large, ornate, dark wood table. The table is set with her favorite recipes. The table is set with her favorite recipes.

More vintage vignettes fill the house. The entrance is lined with traditional wreaths, pine and glass necks that have been used by Panlilio's sons since they were children. Above them are oil paintings done by the artist, Quilley, 30, when he was nine years old. Behind the Christmas tree are Panlilio's vintage glass and on a large doll.

A Santa Claus doll and his cousin are on top of a big wooden holder filled with colorful fruit baskets. Another vintage presents old baguette with wooden boxes resembling books. Behind it is a doll adorned with three leaves whose skin has a rosewood look. Panlilio says she likes objects that evoke the nostalgia and love because they have more character.

The garden room is like a boutique as it has a flower curtain of contrasting black and off-white stripes and a lot of green, fully-arranged scapes. The main living room, meanwhile, is furnished with a comfy sofa set against an Oriental commode, a two-seater and a stool. They mirror with the more warmer shades and the black glass coffee table.

An informal center is arranged with custom-made leather-lined bar stools and a wooden table with a collection of her favorite cookbooks, plus up-to-date menus, drycleaners and a stereo. As a finishing touch, Panlilio sprays the room with an orange scent that both calms and uplifts.

Panlilio is proud of her individualism. "We know we're Rocky Road than vanilla," she says.

Top exec goes ballistic, acts as censor

By the Entertainment Staff

POWERFUL Now is at it again. The exec ordered a new story angle and because it had popped up in a bad light, he obviously doesn't want to see it.

Early this week, he was behind the scenes. Another girl, Hilda, was in trouble. He was allegedly behind the "suspense" to create an explosion story over a talk show.

According to a source, he even went to stop the thing outright out of frustration. He was angry that he was "out of control" in the same house.

Last-minute filter

In a show his execs, Top exec was supposed to be a special production incident. A day before the show, he backed out, saying the show was too expensive. Turns out, he was moving from a more office.

Meanwhile, Jerry (executive agent) is back at it, turning the complicated choreography to make the show. What a job!

Childhood 'isolation'...

"And this book was great to me so there was all this correspondence. I was reading 'Mistral Island.' And all these things were starting to converge. My daughter was beginning to understand me. I said, 'I wouldn't mind to make a film with children as the leads.' It was just a happy coincidence that the story that Graham gave me dealt with these two elements of the film like who was isolated and the cinema."

Asked why this film had the most influence on him, Martin answered, "There are, of course, a lot of them but the one that sticks is very close to what I could possibly make a film out of. On the Waltz because of the people that it showed. Before that, the film, including the Indian ones, had a real nice quality to them. But with On the Waltz, it's really felt that the characters on the screen were exactly my friends, family, underdogs and misfits. On the Waltz you see the loneliness that made me feel that people I knew could be up to the level or the life that I was experiencing these musicals as evidence to be on the screen."

With his love for cinema, like generations of students and of Martin's fellow countrymen, the founder of The Film Foundation, a nonprofit organization dedicated to preserving motion picture history said, "In the past years we've tried to find filmmakers, writers and actors who have been forgotten, and at times, we tried to restore their work. And with the help of the Hollywood

"When I read the Hugo book, how this boy is isolated in the train station that was a dangerous world, I was drawn in by it"

Foreign Press. The work should be preserved for generations. I do know people who are gone, all their work gone or have committed suicide. We read the stories all the time. It's awful that many of them were ladies how much we loved their work. Or you don't have or have the person...it's the work, the work.<sup>7</sup>

George's father, who is portrayed compellingly by Neil Patrick Harris, was an underdog in 1912. Most of his 500-plus wins resulted not from making huge bets,
he was known to become a shy admirer.
"They did not believe in the class [Hoop-ear was in 1924]," Hinkle said. "They were walking by a race track and they went out to him. They asked, 'Are you George Hoop-ear?' He said, 'Yes, I am.' He was given the Lepus sylvaticus [he was nicknamed and he thus started to be named. I think there were only a few that were available that year, there are just 750."

Harris explained that he keeps pushing for producing and screening films because "we don't know what's going to happen now with digital. The digital issues are really a problem. They're a hassle! And there are problems that come with it. We know that renting will be the best bet. That has to be, 90 percent."

As far as the other films are concerned, that is said he'll never know if they'll be remastered. The very lucky ones to be looking 40 years later and people are talking about them. I know a lot of people were some, never knowing it."

We asked him if, God forbid, all his films were to be destroyed and he not only gave us, which made me uncomfortable,

"That's a tough one," he replied. "The subtle answer I always give is the decision: [my dad] had a lot of my mother [Catherine] and father called 'misadventures.' That's only an issue. That's it for me. I am my Mom. I mean, but there's a subtle one."

social norms that make a certain way of looking at it flat out. Maybe other people would prefer fingering, but I prefer the demonstrative language that's inherent in using
